Sames were first discovered by Police-The flames were first discovered by Policeman George W. Kroral, whose attention was attracted by the screaming of a parrot belonging to the Grassmucks. Stopping to listen, he saw smoke coming from the celiar under the calcon. He blew his whistle, which brought Policemen Carey and Casey to the spot. They found the celiar full of smoke andla fire burning flercely in one corner. Carey ran to send out the alarm from the box, corner of Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, while Kr.ral and Casey Went to arouse the alceping family.

This was about 2.20 o'clock. The flames had already eaten their way up from the celiar and were burning fercely on the first floor. The whole building was charged with smoke.

The flames started, it is believed, in the cellar near the beer vault, on the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street side of building. A quantity of pacer and dry leaves had been blown into the cellar, which is on a level with the walk. Mr. Grassmuck said it was probable that some one had dropped a lighted eigarette or cigar into the cellar some time last night, which smouldered for some hours until the rubbish blazed up and started the fire.
